These directions² are possible³: → ← ↑ ↓

¹ grid – Gitter, Raster, Tabelle; ² direction – Richtung; ³ possible – möglich

G4 R: Bedingungssätze Typ I

Revision: If-clauses type I

Um Bedingungen und Folgen auszudrücken, benutzt man if-Sätze.

Dabei steht im if-Satz das simple present, im Hauptsatz das will-future.

Geht der if-Satz voran, steht am Ende des if-Satzes ein Komma.

Bedingung (condition)	Folge (consequence)
If Michael finds a job,	he will earn some money.	Wenn Michael einen Job findet, wird er etwas Geld verdienen.
If you don't work well,	you won't get a bonus.	Wenn du nicht gut arbeitest, bekommst du keine Prämie.

Bedingungssätze können auch mit dem Hauptsatz beginnen. Dann entfällt das Komma.

Folge (consequence)	Bedingung (condition)
You will be late	if you walk .	Du wirst zu spät kommen, wenn du zu Fuß gehst.
You won't be successful	if you don't work more carefully.	Du wirst nicht erfolgreich sein, wenn du nicht sorgfältiger arbeitest.

Das will-future drückt allgemein Zukünftiges aus. Im if-Satz steht nie will oder won't!

Für das will-future kannst du im Deutschen die Zukunft oder die Gegenwart benutzen. Beides ist richtig. Vergleiche:

He will earn some money.

Er wird etwas Geld verdienen.
Er verdient etwas Geld.
